HISTORY OF THE TOURNAMENT

It started with a meeting in the publisher's office of The Standard and is still going strong almost five decades later. The Standard High School Basketball Tournament is one of the highlights of the season for players and coaches alike.

In the early 1960s, Ridley College coach Carl Dorland and sports editor Jack Gatecliff approached Standard owner W.B.C. Burgoyne about the possibility of staging a high school boys' basketball tournament. That first tournament was held March 8 & 9, 1962 with eight teams--host Ridley, Beamsville High School, Grantham High School, Lakeport Secondary School, Merritton High School, Niagara District Secondary School, St. Catharines Collegiate and Thorold & District High School. Ridley emerged the first champion, defeating Beamsville in the final.

Subsequent tournaments took place in January and February, but the players put so much emphasis on winning a Standard title that, in the early 1970s, the date was moved back to the now traditional December, so it wouldn't conflict with the high school playoffs. It was also at that time the tournament was expanded from 8 to 16 teams. The tournament briefly expanded to 24 teams in the 1990's, including teams from South Niagara, but reverted to its 16-team format in 2005 comprised solely of North Niagara high schools.

Early in the tournament's history, funds from gate receipts exceeded costs and it was decided to distribute those moneys in the form of bursaries. Since that time, thousands of dollars have been distributed to deserving student-athletes to help defray their first-year costs of attending university or college.

There have been a few constants for these many years. The basketball tournament committee is comprised of basketball fans from within the community and separate from the Standard. It is through their hard work and dedication that the tournament is one of the longest running of its kind in Ontario.

And, of course, the tournament would not be a success if not for the dedication of the players and coaches. Year after year, they have provided basketball fans with fine competition, simply for the love of the game.

Rookie of the Year.
Goals: Be a positive role model. Play pro in Europe.

For both sides of the brain.

When you come to Brock University, you'll experience the best of both worlds. Not only will you have tremendous academic opportunities, you'll also be able to participate in sports at the recreational and varsity levels — just like I did. After being named a three-time SOSSA Conference all-star and high school Athlete of the Year in 2007 and 2008, Brock was a great fit for my academic and athletic aspirations. In fact, I was named the 2009-10 Canadian Rookie of the Year. I was also involved in Impact, a mentoring program for youth at risk.

Brock has won 28 national and 56 Ontario championships. Join us and be part of our slam-dunk tradition.

We wish the best to all participants in the Standard High School Basketball Tournament.
